COOL COPPER

Your taste buds shouldn't have a monopoly over a cocktail – visual impact counts, too. Some companies use unique glasses, others light up a small flame; Ketel One vodka recently launched a rather traditional-looking copper kettle into which you can decant your Ketel One tippable of choice. The idea for it was inspired by the brand's first copper pot, still in use at the distiller's home in Holland. Available to wow crowds at selected outlets in Jakarta and Bali.

LE PUY “BARTHELEMY”

Chateau Le Puy of Saint-Emilion has been making wine for over 400 years. To this day, the vineyard continues a tradition of organic and biodynamic viticulture; no chemical fertilisers, herbicides and artificial insecticides allowed, thank you very much. One product it champions is the Barthelemy, which is 85 per cent Merlot and 15 per cent Cabernet Sauvignon. Barthelemy has great depth of flavour, and ends with a silky finish.

DVF FOR EVIAN

For fans of legendary fashion designer Diane von Furstenberg and, well, water, Evian's 2013 limited-edition, DVF-designed water bottle has finally made it to our shores. Reminiscent of a clear, wine bottle, the magnum is covered with her logo and handwriting, proclaiming: "Water is Life is Love is Life is Water is..."
